Financial Aid and Scholarships

The SJSU School of Information offers generous scholarships to both new students and continuing students enrolled in its Master of Library and Information Science, Master of Archives and Records Administration, or MS in Informatics program. Additional scholarships are also available from San José State University and other agencies.

Financial Aid

See information about applying for financial aid here: SJSU Financial Aid and Scholarship Office

The SJSU Financial Aid Office phone number is (408) 283-7500 (Press #4).

> The SJSU Financial Aid office offers Live Chat on their website M – F: 12 – 4 pm Pacific.
> Check out an array of short financial aid and financial literacy videos for graduate students and their families, from SJSU's Financial Aid and Scholarships Office. Topics include: 2022 FAFSA Tutorial, Loan Repayment, Understanding your Financial Aid Offer, Verification, Education Tax Benefits and Credits, Grant Programs and many more.

When to Apply for Financial Aid

iSchool applicants who would like to apply for financial aid should file their FAFSA (federal financial aid application) once they have submitted their application for admission to the SJSU iSchool. The Financial Aid Office will not make any financial awards or disbursements until an applicant has:

- Been admitted to the iSchool
- Enrolled for classes

The amount awarded depends on the number of units a student takes each semester. Students need to enroll in at least 4 units (200 level courses*) each semester in order to maintain eligibility for financial aid.

*SJSU 100 level World Languages classes (SPAN 132-10 or SPAN 132-11) are excluded from this rule as these classes apply toward the MLIS degree.

FAFSA Priority Filing Dates are available from the SJSU Financial Aid and Scholarship Office. Applications are processed in the order received and can take up to 14 weeks to be processed.

In order for financial aid to be available in your first semester, you must complete your financial aid application 3 to 4 months before the semester begins. Plan ahead to avoid classes being dropped for lack of payment.

If you are a Special Session student and have already applied for financial aid, you may contact Contact Jenisha McCoy in the SJSU Financial Aid Office at 408-924-6081. In your email, provide your full name and SJSU Student ID Number.

Important Note: Applicants, admitted students, and continuing students are responsible for checking their MySJSU accounts daily to review all areas of their accounts (Finances, Payment Due Dates, Holds, Messages, To-do list and Enrollment Dates), for status updates, communications and due dates from Financial Aid, the Bursar, Registrar, iSchool student services and instructors. A Student Center Overview is available. iSchool staff members are unable to advise you on your specific financial aid status or your application for financial aid.

Diversity Scholarships

A Commitment to Diversity

The SJSU School of Information attracts students from all over the world with diverse backgrounds and experiences that contribute to the richness of the library and information science profession. Diversity is a core value of the American Library Association (ALA), with a whole department working towards recruiting a LIS workforce that is richly diverse in order to provide the highest quality of information services to all people. A recent photo essay from Slate Magazine entitled, "This is What a Librarian Looks Like" helps to break down long-held stereotypes and showcases the reality of a workforce that reflects the diverse nature of our library patrons and our country.

According to the ACRL standards on diversity in libraries, "diversity is an essential component of any civil society. It is more than a moral imperative; it is a global necessity. Everyone can benefit from diversity, and diverse populations need to be supported so they can reach their full potential for themselves and their communities." For further information about the ACRL's diversity standards, check out this iSchool Webcast from Spring 2013, "A Practical Guide to ACRL's Diversity Standards".

The ALA, ACRL, and other library organizations are committed to contributing to the creation of a diverse workforce by establishing scholarships, fellowships, and recruitment programs to attract potential information professionals from a wide variety of backgrounds. The following pages highlight many of these opportunities both nationwide and within California.

Travel Grants for Current Students

Participating and attending professional association conferences is a wonderful way for students to expand their skills, make new contacts, and immerse themselves in the information field. The SJSU School of Information highly encourages students to support their studies by going to professional association conferences but also realizes that they can be cost prohibitive. In an attempt to lessen the financial burden, eligible iSchool students can apply for travel grants. Funds for these grants are limited and are available to eligible student on a first come, first served basis.

Special Session Students can apply for grants to attend any professional association conference related to their field of study, but some of the funding has been set aside specifically for the American Library Association Annual Conference and the California Library Association Annual Conference.

Per University policy, if a student is traveling for the sole purpose of professional development, i.e., not presenting on behalf of the school, not helping with an iSchool event – the travel grant will be processed through the Financial Aid and Scholarship Office upon completion of travel. If the student is presenting on behalf of iSchool or helping with an iSchool event, the student will be reimbursed through a Travel Reimbursement – see the Student Travel Process below.

Eligibility

- Students must have a current GPA of at least a 3.2.
- Students must be actively enrolled in the MLIS, MARA or Informatics program in special session.
- Students must be taking at least 3 units in the semester that they apply and in the semester that they travel.
- Only one travel grant per academic year will be awarded to the same student. For example, if a student is awarded a travel grant in the fall semester, they are not eligible to apply for a travel grant in the spring semester.

Application Process

- Complete the online form at least 30 days before the intended travel date or when calls for applications go out.

    - Grants will be awarded contingent on available funds and only to eligible students.

Restrictions

- The funds should be used for expenses associated with attendance at a regional or national professional conference related to iSchool program areas (e.g., library and information science, informatics, archives and records administration) for learning, professional networking, and/or presenting a conference paper/poster.
- Grants will not be awarded for international travel.
- The university travel approval must be secured 30 days prior to attending the conference.
    - See: https://ischool.sjsu.edu/faculty-handbook-travel-rules-and-regulations
- Travel must be completed in the fiscal year that the award was granted in; fiscal year runs July 1 to June 30.
- Each student is eligible for one travel grant to attend a single conference. Splitting or partial allocation of the grant across multiple conferences is not permitted.
- Students must follow the standard university travel approval processes including the timelines for approval. Our office staff members will guide students through the process which involves working far in advance of the travel dates to meet the requirements.
    - See the iSchool Travel Rules and Regulations: https://ischool.sjsu.edu/faculty-handbook-travel-rules-and-regulations

Student Travel Process

Professional Development Travel

Upon conclusion of your travel:

- Email the Administrative Analyst, Roffna Principe (roffna.principe@sjsu.edu) a list of your expenses with copies of your receipts.
- Your payment request will be submitted to the Financial Aid and Scholarship Office and will disburse to your student account once the process is completed.

Travel Representing iSchool

If you are presenting on behalf of iSchool or helping with an iSchool event:

- As soon as you know you are going to travel, apply for a Student Travel Grant.
- Once you are awarded the grant, the Administrative Analyst will initiate a travel authorization for you.
    - This will come via DocuSign – unless you are a student employee, in this case, you will receive it via FTS.
    - This must be done a minimum of 30 days prior to the date of travel.
- Complete the Student Travel Informed Consent Risk Management Form.
- Email the completed forms to the Administrative Analyst.
- The Administrative Analyst will review the information for accuracy and compliance, and will submit the Request for Approval of Travel for the required approvals.
- Students will be notified once the Request for Approval of Travel is approved.
- Students will make their own travel arrangements.
    - Students must pay for the related expenses, and will then be reimbursed for qualified travel expenses.
- Keep all of your receipts while traveling.
    - You cannot be reimbursed for expenses with missing receipts.
- Once travel has taken place, all receipts must be submitted to the Administrative Analyst, who will then complete the Travel Expense Claim form.
    - You will be reimbursed for your qualified expenses up to the amount of your travel grant.
    - Receipts must be submitted within 30 days of the conclusion of travel.
    - If the receipt is vague, provide an explanation.
    - Scan all your receipts, use the Travel Reimbursement Receipts Log to organize them, and email them to the Administrative Analyst, Roffna Principe (roffna.principe@sjsu.edu).
- The Administrative Analyst will submit the Travel Expense Claim form and the receipts for approval and reimbursement processing.
- Once the Travel Expense Claim is processed by Payment Services, a check will be issued and mailed to the student's address unless the student has submitted an Employee Reimbursement Direct Deposit Authorization form to Accounts Payable (even if you are a student).
    - See: https://blogs.sjsu.edu/financeconnect/2020/08/04/employee-reimbursement-direct-deposit/

Condition of the Award

- After the conference concludes, students who have received financial support are required to write a summary of their conference experience for iStudent blog within two weeks after returning from their trip.

Grants

Many associations and organizations offer grants to encourage LIS students' attendance at conferences and to support student research. Read about these opportunities below. Application requirements and deadlines vary. Since many of these grants are given annually, those with deadlines that have passed are included here for your future planning.

How to Apply for Endowed and Donated Scholarships

The SJSU School of Information offers several endowed and donated scholarships, and you may apply for as many scholarships as you wish.

Please submit a separate application for each scholarship entry. Applications will be accepted between March 1 and March 31. Scholarships awarded in the spring will be dispersed toward a recipient's course fees for the fall semester. The scholarship application includes a section for a written statement that you can enter directly on the form.

This form is closed until spring 2027.

Travel Grants for Current Students Application

The Student Travel Grant application is now closed for the remainder of the academic year.
The application period will reopen in July 2026.

The iSchool has student travel grants available for up to $1,500.00 for any professional association conference held in the United States that pertains to your career path.

> You must be a currently enrolled special session student at the SJSU iSchool to qualify for this travel grant.

The grants will be awarded on a first come, first served basis. Selected students will be reimbursed up to $1,500.00 of their travel expenses, which can include any combination of registration, hotel costs, transportation, or other qualifying travel expenses.

Please complete the form below to apply and you will be contacted if you are selected.

The iSchool will require a two-hour shift in our booth and/or at our receptions where you will serve as a student ambassador sharing your positive experiences with prospective students. This is only when iSchool is hosting a booth and/or a reception at the conference you are attending.

There is no specific deadline and travel grants are awarded until all funds have been disbursed. We encourage you to apply now as funds are limited.
